Fahmi Panimbang is an expert on Human Rights, Political Economy and Social Policy. His research focuses on capital mobility, global supply chains, corporate social responsibility and workers' rights in Asia. As an activist, he worked from 2010 until 2016 at the Asia Monitor Resource Centre in Hong Kong, where his work was concerned with monitoring Asian transnational corporations and fighting against international capital's exploitation of cheap labour. He holds a MA in Sociology from Sungkonghoe University in Seoul.
